The pictures are both entertaining and instructive.

Police Notes

Ah Hing, proprietor of a restaurant near the corner of Merchant and Alakea street, has reported to the police that some person, to him as yet unknown, broke a front window of the premises last night. He estimates his loss at about $175. Nothing of value has been reported as missing.

Wahinepio Namokueha, a Hawaiian fisherman, aged about 45 years, who has for years resided in the vicinity of the "gold mine" in Iwilei, was suddenly stricken by illness and died in the arms of his brother last evening. Deputy Sheriff Rose has investigated the matter but will in all probability hold no inquest, as death is reported to have resulted from natural causes. "I am going to die" were the last words uttered by the fisherman as he dropped to the ground near his home.

EBERSOLE HOME ENTHUSED OVER RELIGIOUS WORK

munity. Seattle is the city that undertakes big things. It is planning for future years one of the largest docking facilities of any city in the country, and if these plans are carried out it will have a wonderful harbor and shipping accommodations. No city which I visited had such a fine system of parks and boulevards. The government of Seattle is not afraid to tax people for public improvements. The Smith building, just completed there, is next to the Woolworth building in New York in size, being 42 stories.

"During my trip East, my stay in Chicago was brief. I went almost directly to Columbia university, as the course had already begun there. The subject upon which I specialized this summer was the new movement for religious education; the neglected half of the church's work, as I call it. To my mind, the great change to be made in the life and growth of the church will be along lines developing thorough and systematic religious instruction in every church, giving to it the same recognition and emphasis as we have in past generations to preaching. In other words, it is elevating the teaching ministry to its rightful place alongside the preaching ministry; the establishment of a church school alongside of the temple of worship; the organization not only of graded course of instruction for children and young people, with promotion and graduation, but of instruction to provide courses for all classes in the community, with special emphasis on manual training for social service. It is to show the people what to do and how to do it."

"After the summer school I spent two months on the Maine coast, the summer playground of the northeast, going as far east as Bar Harbor. Then began my visitations. There were very few churches of the kind I was particularly interested in, in session during the summer. In fact, there are comparatively few in the country, and the few churches that have under way this broad form of education do not organize until the first part of October. One of the most widely known church religious educational institutions to be carried on in connection with the church is at Buffalo, N. Y."

Mr. Ebersole has been asked to speak in Central Union church Sunday morning, at which time he will tell of this new movement for church education and the manner in which such a system may best be carried out in Honolulu.

W. T. Donnelly, a director of the Board of Trade of New York and a member of the Merchants' Association of that city, will be the speaker at the Commercial Club lunch Thursday noon. He talks promises to be of interest and a large number of the members and their friends are expected to be present.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Merchants' Association Saturday afternoon, the first Thursday in December was set as the date for a special meeting of the members of the organization, at which time the matter of the consolidation of the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association will be discussed. The illness of E. A. McInerney, one of the jurors in federal court in the trial of the Spanish couple held on a statutory charge now means that another week's work will be required to bring that hearing to a conclusion. The trial began early last week and was delayed without action several days by the illness of the woman defendant. The physician's certificate presented this morning, stating that the juror probably will be unable to attend court for three or four days resulted in the dismissal of the entire petit jury and the calling of another jury for tomorrow morning, when the trial must be started all over again. All federal petit jurors save those who have been sitting in the case have been asked to be present in court at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The accused couple are Francisco Begas and Mrs. Petra Rodriguez Huete.

FERGUSON CASE STILL REMAINS IN LIMELIGHT

Honolulu and Maui have not heard the last of the now-famous Ferguson case of Wailuku, in which the supreme court virtually held last week that Judge A. B. Kingsbury illegally took the young bride, Rose Figaro Ferguson, away from her husband. The court granted a writ of habeas corpus, restoring her to the bridegroom and his family. But it appears that the young woman's counsel has threatened to make trouble for Miss Lida Crickard, the school teacher of Wailuku, in whose custody as probation officer the girl was placed by Judge Kingsbury.

In a communication received today by Attorney-General Thayer from County Attorney D. H. Case of Maui is included the text of a threat against Miss Crickard by Attorney Eugene Murphy, of the firm of Andrews, Quarles & Murphy. It is to the effect that "unless adjusted within three days" to the satisfaction of Rose Figaro Ferguson the matter of her detention by Miss Crickard is to be brought into court in Honolulu on a charge of false imprisonment, preferred against the school teacher.

Miss Crickard has laid the affair before the county attorney at Wailuku, who, in turn, has placed it before the attorney-general. The latter has sent a communication to the firm of Andrews, Quarles & Murphy informing them that Miss Crickard was within the law and that she will make no settlement with them or their client.

In granting the writ of habeas corpus last week which released Rose Figaro Ferguson from Miss Crickard's care the supreme court held that in error in taking her from her husband, Miss Crickard had no means of knowing that an order of the circuit court might be in error, however, and her defense, if suit is actually brought against her, will be that she was justified in acting on the court order, even though it later was proven technically improper.

It will be held that if action is warranted now against anyone it should be against the court which granted the order, not against the official who acted upon it. The attorney-general and the county attorney of Maui have promised to take up the case in the school teacher's defense if the matter is brought into court.

"We will be glad to aid in the defense of Miss Crickard," said Thayer today. "We feel she is the last one who should be dragged into court in this connection."

NEW POLICE TO BE CHOSEN FROM ELIGIBLES

Two foot police and one mounted officer are to be appointed by Sheriff William P. Jarrett, following the receipt from the civil service commission of a list of candidates eligible for the positions.

The examinations given two weeks ago resulted in more than a score of applicants receiving the required percentage. It is from this list that the sheriff will make his selection. The physical fitness of the candidates has been passed upon by a medical officer.

The salary attached to the position of mounted policeman is $100. The foot police officers receive $70 a month. One of the vacancies among the patrolmen is caused by the resignation of Officer Peters.

Swaden, a former detective, was taken from an $85 job by Jarrett and given a temporary appointment as inspector of weights and measures, paying a salary of $100 a month.

Swaden will be obliged to pass the examination at the hands of the civil service commission before qualifying for a permanent position.

J. J. Enright, a former police officer, has been promoted to the position of acting receiving clerk at central station. He takes the place vacated by Harry Clark.

JAMES MARCIAL CLEARED ON ONE FORGERY CHARGE

Because the prosecution could not prove he had cashed or aided directly in cashing a forged check, James Marcial, a Filipino, was cleared of one forgery charge in Judge Robinson's court this morning, the court directing the verdict of the jury on motion of Attorney George A. Davis, counsel for the defense. Marcial is not yet at liberty, however, being held on another charge of a similar nature, on which he will be tried shortly.

DICK SULLIVAN TALKS OF BOAT RACE FOR 1914

Dick Sullivan, the well known local sporting man, was a returning passenger on the Sierra this morning, after a visit of several weeks' duration in San Francisco.

While in the coast metropolis Sullivan had several interviews with prominent rowing men there in regard to another race between a Honolulu crew and one from California. He had conversations with E. B. Thorning, who came here in 1912 as manager of the Alameda crew, and several others.

At the present time the Alameda Rowing Club holds the trophy emblematic of the six-oared barge championship of the Pacific, won here in 1912.

Thorning, according to Sullivan, said that the event had been overlooked this last season, but that in the coming spring steps would be taken to decide the coast championship, so that a challenger would be ready to defend against any crew that Honolulu might send up. A. B. Kroll of the Healanis, accompanied Sullivan on several of these calls.

Sullivan saw the Portola swimming meet and said that with the exception of the relay race there was little real interest in the events. "The Duke was conceded all the races that he took part in," he said, "and he won them all without extending himself. The relay race, though, was the most exciting swimming race I have ever seen."

Sullivan said that he had no arrangements with coast fighters to come to Honolulu, as the men up there wanted far too much to make the trip.
